MONDAY, MAY 18, 1767.

To the Publishers of THE BOSTON-GAZETTE, AND COUNTRY JOURNAL.

Please to insert the following in your next.

IN the Massachusett's Gazette of January 29th the public were favored with some pertinent reflections, on the impolicy of sending a popish Bishop to Canada, taken from the London Chronicle. The judicious writer seems to have some hope that the account given in the prints of the sending such a Bishop is only a fiction designed to amuse the reader. I wish it was no more. But it is certain that a Bishop arrived at Quebec some time since, and was received by the inhabitants with great joy. Effectual care is taken by this measure to maintain popery in all it's forms in that conquered country; which I know not how to reconcile to the principles of religion, or of good policy.

IF religion is of any importance, if popery is dangerous to the souls of men, and our great reformers are to be justified in casting off the yoke of Antichrist, how cruel is it to take any methods to confirm our brethren and fellow subjects in their superstitions; however fond they may at present be of them! Ought we not rather to be at any expence to convince them of their errors, to bring them to an acquaintance with the sacred scriptures, and to propagate among them the pure gospel of our blessed Saviour?

WHEN Canada was reduced by the British arms I could not but entertain the pleasing hope that the inhabitants would soon be delivered from the shackles in which they had been held by their priests, that rational manly religion would take place of the follies and fopperies of the church of Rome, and would spread among the remotest Indian tribes. I expected to hear of large emissions of French Bibles, and that the venerable society for propagating the gospel had removed their missionaries from New-England, where they only serve a party, to Canada, where they might promote the glorious cause of truth and christian liberty. And who can harbour the least suspicion, that men of so great self-denial as these laborious missionaries, who have been for a long time exerting themselves to propagate the church of England in some of our most populous towns, and have not been discouraged tho' they have not had the desired success, would be unwilling to commence itinerants in those severer climates? Or if these gentlemen think it of more importance to bring protestants of other denominations into the bosom of the church of England, than to spread the principles of the reformation among papists; it is possible some might be found as well qualified, who would be willing to undertake the other truly apostolic employment; and the money expended by the society, which is now absolutely thrown away, might be improved to the most valuable purposes in Canada. Our missionaries would not complain, as their Parishes are, in general, well able to support them——But to my surprize not one step has been taken, either by the ministry or by the society, to promote so good a work. Instead of protestant ministers a popish Bishop is sent!

I AM equally at a loss to account for this measure upon the principles of policy. The sending a Bishop to Canada certainly tends to increase their attachment to the church of Rome,—an attachment absolutely inconsistent with the allegiance they have sworn to Great-Britain. Can they be good subjects to King George who profess subjection to a foreign head, to one who looks upon England as the great support of the northern heresy? and whose religion teaches them that no faith is to be kept with heretics? Besides, will not the roman catholics in England and Ireland make use of this public countenance which is given to their religion in America as an argument for an unlimited tolleration of popery in those kingdoms? Those in Ireland actually begin to make this plea. How dangerous would even an attempt to procure such a tolleration be in the present state of the nation, when popery makes such rapid progress!

IT is true this measure has a tendency to fill this new conquered Country with inhabitants. The Acadians, who were dispersed in the British colonies, are all removing to Canada; very probably that they may receive confirmation from the precious hands of a Bishop. How readily will these blind bigots, irritated to the last degree by their banishment from their own country, unite with the Canadians in any future attempt upon the English colonies, whom they look upon as the cause of their ruin. And we may expect that they will be joined by the roman catholic stragglers from Ireland, who are to be found every where in the colonies, and whose envenomed minds always prompt them to the most bloody massacres. I shall not attempt to paint the terrible prospects that present themselves to my mind. I wish they may prove altogether imaginary.

"I PAY no regard, says the respectable writer in the London Chronicle, to the insinuations of those who intimate that our right reverend Fathers connive at this measure, and are willing to let it pass without notice, that they may make use of it as a precedent for episcopizing our Americans who are not of the church of England."—This hint alarmed me. No one is ignorant of the repeated efforts there have been to introduce Bishops into our English Colonies. These attempts have been hitherto abortive.—But we have the utmost reason to suppose that the patrons of the scheme only wait for a favourable opportunity to carry it into execution.—And what a plausible pretext does the sending a popish Bishop afford them! "You have indulged those who were conquered by your Arms with the free exercise of their religion—you have sent a Bishop to preside over them—and can you deny this favor to those of the same religion with yourselves, who are of the same church with the Monarch, & which is established in this realm"?* Whether the English prelates had this in view, whether they have sacrificed the cause of the reformation to their party designs, I cannot say—But I expect every day to hear that such arguments are used with the ministry & with the parliament. Unhappy indeed would it be, if they should hearken to these or any other, so as to go into a measure which can be of no service to Great-Britain, and cannot fail to give great uneasiness and discontent to a very great part of the colonists, who are now quiet, and have recovered that confidence in our mother kingdom, which they had almost lost by the late unkind attack on their civil rights.

AFTER all it must be confessed, that by the arrival of a Bishop at Canada, one difficulty is removed out of the way of our episcopal brethren. They have often complained of "the risque their missionaries run, by passing and repassing to and from our colonies, on account of ordination by an established Bishop." I think they allow the validity of popish, tho' not of presbyterian ordination. And indeed without allowing it, what would become of their uninterrupted succession from the Apostles? There will be no further occasion of their missionaries crossing the atlantic. They may only take a short trip to Quebec, and be ordained to their heart's content. Or the Bishop of Canada may once a year make a tour thro' colonies, when he may ordain all the candidates for holy orders, and may befides confirm multitudes of the episcopal persuasion, who otherwise might never experience the advantage of that sacred rite.

I INTENDED to have made some remarks on the injurious aspersions cast on the Colonies in the Bishop of Glocester's Sermon before the Society, lately published: But I find this done to my hand by a very sensible writer in the Gazette of May 4th. I hope the Bishop had not his information from the accounts sent to the Society by their Missionaries. They cannot but know that in New-England the memory of our Fathers is held in the highest veneration; and that there are very few, if any, who dare to laugh at the sacred Scriptures. Whoever has read the late excellent Dr. Mayhew's Observations, must conclude that the people of England were alarmed by them. This suggests a probable reason for the Bishop's taking up with some vague uncertain rumours, and improving them at such a time, to perswade well disposed persons to contribute to the pious design of propagating the gospel, which they doubtless began to fear was greatly perverted. Candor to the missionaries oblige me to make the supposition. Be this as it may,—if deism, or gentilism as his Lordship affects to denominate it, did really prevail in the Colonies, there are numbers in most of them among the Dissenters, both of Clergy and Laity, who are able and willing to defend the christian cause. This therefore ought not to detain the missionaries from carrying the gospel to the Heathen, the true design of those who founded the society that supports them.

To Dr. A. W. Q

SAMUEL ADAMS, Clerk.

"SIR, Auguſt 30, 1766.

"If any Thing could add to the ſecret Satisfaction which I have all along found in defending to the utmoſt of my poor Abilites the Rights and Privileges of th Colonies, it is that public Mark of Favour which you have been pleaſed to tranſmit me by Order of your Aſſembly, ſignifying their Approbation of my Conduct. At the ſame Time I muſt confeſs it was no more than the Duty owing to our Mother Country required of me, whoſe Intereſts are become ſo cloſely connected and interwoven with her Colonies, that I cannot look upon them in any other Light than inſeparable.

Permit me nevertheleſs, through you, Sir, to return the Aſſembly my moſt humble and ſincere Thanks for the great Honour they have conferred upon me, and to aſſure them that I can never conſider myſelf as a Friend to Great Britain, without being a Friend to them. Animated with theſe Sentiments, I ſhall conclude with a moſt earneſt Prayer, that Great-Britain and her Colonies in future may never have any jarring Intereſts; and then I am ſure that they cannot fail proving a mutual Support to each other, and a Strength irreſiſtible againſt the common Enemy, rendering the Britiſh Empire the moſt glorious and moſt reſpectable in all Parts of the World. I have the Honor to be, with the higheſt Regard, Sir, theirs and your moſt faithful, and moſt obedient humble Servant, P—."
